

LETTER FROM THE EDITOR

This is a combined double issue of the Australian International Law News for 1991. There are a wide number of issues covered in the Article, including two in the Asia Pacific region. The Cambodian problem is the subject of a paper by Ken Berry and the Status of Kurile Islands (Northern Territories) by Peter Corne. The Regulatory Problems of International Automated Securities Trading Systems is considered by Professor R P Austin. Professor James Crawford and Professor Francis Boyle give differing views on Palestine. Lectures and addresses by two prominent Australians, the Honourable Gough Whitlam and Honourable Michael Duffy, the Attorney-General, are included and there are two reports on the English and American Approaches to International Securities Regulation.

I would like to thank my Associate Editor, Mrs. Alexis Goh, and my secretaries Gwenda Dwyer and Noemi Salenga for the work they have undertaken for this publication.
