

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Acknowledgements

I am indebted to the contributors herein, without whose willingness to participate, expertise and responsiveness to my editorial invitations and requests, this book would not exist.

I am ever grateful to my colleagues in the School of Social Work and Social Policy at the University of South Australia who have generously accommodated my book preoccupations, in particular Di Gursansky, Judy Harvey and Sue King who have each in different ways, walked alongside this project. I am also very appreciative of the skilled formatting assistance of Aphy Hughes.

Ann Cunningham and before her Trisha Valliappan, from Federation Press have been flexible supports throughout this book project and their confidence has made my job so much easier than it might otherwise have been.

Rosemary Kennedy
Adelaide, November 2008

Notes on contributors

Joshua Burns

After graduating with a Bachelor of Applied Science (Podiatry), First Class Honours and the University Medal, Joshua Burns has worked as a clinical podiatrist with a special interest in foot/ankle injury management, high-risk foot care and neuromuscular rehabilitation of the lower limb. He has also been involved in undergraduate and postgraduate teaching at The University of Western Sydney and The University of Sydney in both the Podiatry and Physiotherapy Programs. He undertook his PhD research training from 2002 to 2005 focusing on the biomechanical assessment and clinical management of chronic foot pain in adults with foot deformity and neuromuscular disease. This research has led to multiple publications in a range of international journals and has been presented at numerous local and international conferences. In 2007 Dr Burns was presented with a Young Tall Poppy Science Award for outstanding achievement in Podiatry and Paediatric Neurology by the Australian Institute of Policy and Science and NSW Office of Science and Medical Research. Dr Burns is currently a NHMRC Australian Clinical Research Fellow in the Institute for Neuromuscular Research at The Children's Hospital at Westmead, and a Senior Lecturer in the Discipline of Paediatrics and Child Health at the Faculty of Medicine, The University of Sydney.

Anne-Louise Carlton

Ms Carlton has worked for State Government Departments of Health and Community Services in both New South Wales and Victoria since the late 1970s. Her qualifications include undergraduate degrees in Arts and Social Work from Sydney University, an MBA from Monash University, and a Bachelor of Science (Clinical Studies) from Victoria University. She is currently enrolled in a Doctor of Public Health at La Trobe University researching regulation of the health professions. Over the past 15 years, Ms Carlton has worked in the area of workforce regulation for the Victorian Department of Human Services. This work has included legislative reform of occupational regulation legislation under National Competition Policy and management of the Victorian Review of Regulation of the Health Professions that led to the passage of the Victorian Health Professions Registration Act 2005. Her current work priorities include work on regulation of the unregistered health professions, providing policy advice to Victoria Police on the design of a registration scheme for police officers, and providing policy analysis to support implementation of the Council of Australian Government (COAG) reforms to establish a national registration and accreditation scheme for the health professions. She is now the Project Manager, Policy and Legislation, with the National Registration and Accreditation Implementation Team.

Marina Ciccarelli

Marina Ciccarelli (MSc (Ergonomics), GradDip (Occupational Safety and Health); BApp Sc (OT)) is a lecturer in the undergraduate and professional entry masters program at the School of Occupational Therapy at Curtin University of Technology, Perth Western Australia. Marina has worked extensively in the fields of occupational safety and health, ergonomics and workers' compensation injury management in Australia and the United States, and has provided advice to the Compensation Fund of South Africa as part of its development of a national injury management system. Marina's current research interests include the musculoskeletal health effects of new information and communication technologies (ICT) on children, and the application of a corporate citizenship approach to the prevention and management of work-related stress.

Andrew Day

Associate Research Professor Andrew Day is a clinical and forensic psychologist who has worked in correctional and forensic mental health services in the UK and Australia. He has led the Forensic Psychology Research Group for the Centre of Applied Psychological Research at the University of South Australia since 2004. Dr Day obtained his Doctorate in Clinical Psychology at the University of Birmingham UK in 1994 and Masters in Science in Applied Criminological Psychology at the University of London UK in 1991 that included work as a Prison Psychologist with the UK Home Office. He has published many research publications on offender rehabilitation and in 2007 published a book Writing Reports for Court: A Practical Guide For Psychologists Working In Forensic Contexts (Melbourne, Australian Academic Press) with Jack White and Louisa Hackett.

Clare Delany

Dr Clare Delany (PhD, M Hlth and Med Law, M Physiotherapy (manip), B App Sc) is a Senior Lecturer at the School of Physiotherapy at the University of Melbourne and at the Department of Medicine at Monash University. Dr Delany combines her academic and writing interests in the areas of legal and ethical responsibilities of health professionals with direct involvement in professional regulatory bodies. Dr Delany has served for six years as Vice President of the Physiotherapists Registration Board of Victoria and currently as the Physiotherapy member of the Victorian Civil and Administrative Tribunal in Victoria hearing disciplinary complaints.

Trevor Goddard

Trevor Goddard (M Intl Stds (Distinction), BSc(OT), BCom, AIMM) is Director of International Relations and Lecturer at the School of Occupational Therapy, Curtin University of Technology. He received a Curtin University Vice Chancellor's Award for Excellence in 2004 and 2007 and was the 2005 OT Entrepreneur of the Year for OT Australia WA. His teaching and research focuses on corporate citizenship, community development and international service learning. In 2006 he received a National Carrick Institute citation for outstanding contributions to student learning and he is the World Federation of Occupational Therapists UNGC project coordinator having led the Federation's signing of the United Nations Global Compact. Trevor is vice chairperson of Perth Home Care Services Inc, and his work has been recognised with a National Australia Day Council Young Australian Achievers Award and a Rotary International Paul Harris Fellowship.

Rosemary Kennedy

Rosemary Kennedy is a registered psychologist also admitted as a legal practitioner of the Supreme Court of South Australia and a Senior Lecturer at the University of South Australia. She has several years experience working as a psychologist in child and adult mental health services, in disability, and in the management of institutions for children at risk and young offenders. She has many more years experience in higher education, teaching and researching in the areas of counselling, social work, and law. Her teaching, consultancy and research interests cover a number of issues relevant to work in the human services including employment patterns, professional education, legal aspects of human service practice, and malpractice. She is particularly interested in teaching and communicating about law to non-lawyers who require legal literacy in their practice. Her other and related area of interest is approaches to and models of effective human service delivery. She has co authored and authored books on case management and on law and the human services, and is currently writing on malpractice in the human services.

Peter MacFarlane

Peter MacFarlane is an Associate Professor in the School of Law at the University of the South Pacific. Before taking up this appointment he was full-time Law Reform Commissioner for Queensland and an Associate Professor at the Queensland University of Technology (QUT). He was a foundation member of the Australian Institute for Health Law and Ethics and the writer of the first LLB and LLM courses in Medical Law at QUT. He has published extensively in the area of medico-legal issues including the Queensland Health Law Handbook (with Simon Reid) and the text Health Law-Commentary and Materials. In recent years he has been a consultant to UNESCO on Medical Law in the South Pacific and in 2008 contributed (with Helen Menard) a chapter on Medical Law to the International Encyclopaedia of Laws.

Marilyn McMahon

Marilyn McMahon lectures in the School of Law, La Trobe University. She has a background in both psychology and law. She is a past chairperson of the ethics committee of the Australian Psychological Society, was a member of the committee of the Australian and New Zealand Association of Psychiatry, Psychology and Law and a psychologist member of the Intellectual Disability Review Panel. She is currently a member of the Mental Health Review Board and the Faculty of Law ethics committee. She has served on several advisory committees for the Victorian government and researches and publishes in the areas of professional practice, professional negligence and mental disorder and criminal responsibility. Her all-time favourite book is Anna Karenina.

NOTES ON CONTRIBUTORS

Cameron Stewart

Cameron Stewart is Associate Professor of Law, Macquarie University, and Honorary Associate Professor of Medicine, University of Sydney. He has degrees in economics, law and jurisprudence. His PhD was on the law of end-of-life decisions. He has published widely on issues of competence assessment, consent and advance care planning. He currently is involved in projects on guardianship law, advertising of pharmaceuticals, consent to high-risk procedures and storage of umbilical cord blood.

Michael Weir

Michael (BA, LLB, LLM, PhD) has broad professional experience as a solicitor in private legal practice in commercial and property law. In his academic career Michael has published extensively on Land Law and Planning Law. He is an author of Real Property Law in Queensland, Law Book Co (2nd edn, 2004). Michael has a research interest in Medicine and the Law with a focus on complementary and alternative medicine and law and ethics. This interest is reflected in the student textbook Complementary Medicine: Ethics and Law, Prometheus Publications, Brisbane, (2nd edn, 2007).

Beth Wilson

On 1 May 1997 Beth Wilson became Victoria's Health Services Commissioner. She is a lawyer by training and has worked mainly in administrative law. Beth has a long-standing interest in medico-legal and ethical issues. Before becoming Health Services Commissioner, Beth was the President of the Mental Health Review Board and a Senior Legal Member of the Social Security Appeals Board and the WorkCare Appeals Board. Beth is a past President of the Victorian Branch of ANZAPPL (the Australian and New Zealand Association of Psychiatry, Psychology and Law). In October 2002, Beth was awarded Monash University's Distinguished Alumni Award for her outstanding professional achievements and inspirational leadership. In April 2003, Beth was awarded the Centenary Medal for her services to health, and in May 2004 Beth was awarded an Honorary Doctorate from RMIT for her contributions to health education. In 2008 Beth was inducted onto the Victorian Honour Roll of Women for services to women's health in Victoria.