

Acknowledgments

We would like to thank all of our chapter authors from across Australia and Emerita Professor Raewyn Connell for her generous foreword. We would also like to acknowledge our colleagues within the Faculty of Law at the University of New South Wales and the School of Social Sciences and Psychology and the Institute of Culture and Society at the Western Sydney University who contribute to a supportive environment that fosters the research that we value. Genevieve Wilks and Kev Dertardian afforded excellent assistance in editing and finalising the manuscript. The Faculty of Law at the University of New South Wales and the School of Social Sciences and Psychology at the Western Sydney University also provided research funding that contributed to bringing this volume to fruition. Thank you also to Belinda Webb, Art Curator for the University of New South Wales, and the Charles Nodrum Gallery for permission to use Australia (1990) by Elwyn Lynn on the cover and to Diane Macdonald for photography.

We also thank all staff at The Federation Press – Jason Monaghan, Ann Cunningham, Josephine Romeo, Trisha Valliappan, Rebecca Fung, and especially Chris Holt, who strongly supported this project before his untimely passing.

About the Contributors

About the Editors

Julie Stubbs is a criminologist and Professor in the Faculty of Law at the University of New South Wales. Her research is largely focused on gender and criminal justice. She has published widely on domestic violence, homicide, battered woman syndrome, sexual assault, restorative justice, bail, women's imprisonment and justice reinvestment. Her recent publications include co-authoring (with Brown et al) Justice Reinvestment: Winding Back Imprisonment (Palgrave, 2016). She was a member of the NSW Criminal Justice Sexual Assault Taskforce and the NSW Advisory Panel on Domestic and Family Homicides and an advisor for the National Community Attitudes to Violence against Women surveys and the VicHealth violence against women program.

Stephen Tomsen is Professor of Criminology at Western Sydney University. He is a sociologist and criminologist with decades of experience researching issues of socio-legal inequality, violence, masculinity, sexuality, drinking, drug use, urban order and criminal justice. His previous books include Violence, Prejudice and Sexuality (Routledge, 2009), Crime, Criminal Justice and Masculinities: A Reader (ed) (Ashgate, 2008) and Lawyers in Conflict: Australian Lawyers and Legal Aid (Federation Press, 2006). He has held visiting research posts in the United States, United Kingdom, Netherlands and Spain, and presently he is the sole chief investigator on a final-year Australian Research Council Discovery Project on violence and disengagement among young Australian men.

About the Contributors

Jenny Bargan was Director of Youth Justice Conferencing, New South Wales Department of Juvenile Justice. She currently teaches at several universities in Sydney and previously was Senior Lecturer in Law at the University of New South Wales. As a consultant she has reviewed the Children's Legal Service for Legal Aid New South Wales and evaluated a number of crime prevention projects. She was research associate on a study of restorative justice for victims and serious adult offenders.

Jane Bolitho is a Senior Lecturer in Criminology at the University of New South Wales where she teaches courses including Understanding Violence, Aggression and Conflict. Her research focuses on theory and practice in restorative justice, violence, victims, youth justice, qualitative methods, policy evaluation and researching sensitive topics. She co-authored the book Restorative Justice for Adults (Federation Press, 2012).

David Brown is Emeritus Professor in the Faculty of Law at the University of New South Wales and a co-author of Criminal Laws (6th ed, Federation Press, 2015) the innovative, leading student text in criminal law in New South Wales universities. He is widely published across the areas of criminal law, criminal justice, criminology and penology, both in Australia and internationally, and has served as a part-time New South Wales Law Reform Commissioner.

Mark Brown teaches criminology and criminal law at the University of Sheffield and is an Honorary Senior Fellow in Social and Political Sciences at the University of Melbourne. His publications include Dangerous Offenders: Punishment and Social Order (with Pratt, Routledge, 2000), The New Punitiveness (Pratt et al, Willan, 2005) and Penal Culture and Hyperincarceration: The Revival of the Prison (Cunneen et al, Ashgate, 2013).

Kerry Carrington is the Head of the School of Justice at Queensland University of Technology. She is an internationally leading scholar in criminology with expertise in fields including southern criminology, youth justice, rural crime, gender and violence. Her publications include: Feminism and Global Justice (Routledge, 2015), Offending Youth (Federation Press, 2009), Policing the Rural Crisis (Federation Press, 2006) and around 100 other publications.

Janet Chan is Professor at the Faculty of Law at the University of New South Wales. She and Jane Bolitho led the ARC Linkage project 'Restorative Justice for Victims and Serious Offenders' with Corrective Services New South Wales as partner. Janet was elected Fellow of the Academy of Social Sciences in Australia in 2002. In 2015 she was the joint recipient of the ANZ Society of Criminology Distinguished Criminologist Award.

Duncan Chappell is a lawyer, criminologist and Honorary Professor in Law at the University of Sydney. He was previously President of the NSW Mental Health Review Tribunal, a member of the Australian and NSW Law Reform Commissions, Deputy President of the Federal Administrative Appeals Tribunal and Director of the Australian Institute of Criminology. He has held senior academic posts in Australia, Canada and the United States.

Chris Cunneen is Professor of Criminology in the School of Social Sciences at the University of New South Wales. He also holds a conjoint position at the Cairns Institute, James Cook University. He has published widely on Indigenous criminal justice issues. His most recent book (with Brown et al) is Justice Reinvestment: Winding Back Imprisonment (Palgrave, 2016).

Mark Finnane is ARC Laureate Fellow and Professor of History at Griffith University. He has published widely on the history of criminal justice, policing, punishment, and criminal law in both Australia and Ireland. Currently he is directing the ARC-funded 'Prosecution Project', hosted at the Griffith Criminology Institute. Research for his chapter was supported by the Australian Research Council (DP0771492).

Michael Grewcock is a Senior Lecturer in Law at the University of New South Wales. His research is focused on State crime, forced migration and border policing. His publications include Border Crimes: Australia's War on Illicit Migrants (Institute of Criminology Press, 2009) and Criminal Laws (6th ed, Federation Press, 2015). He is a member of the Editorial Board of State Crime and the Editorial Advisory Group of the Howard Journal of Crime and Justice.

Russell Hogg is Professor in the Crime and Justice Research Centre, Faculty of Law at Queensland University of Technology. His research interests include theoretical criminology, punishment and society, the politics of law and order, and crime and justice in rural communities. He is co-author of Policing the Rural Crisis (Federation Press, 2006), Rethinking Law and Order (Pluto Press, 1998) and numerous articles and book chapters.

Ross Homel is Foundation Professor of Criminology at Griffith University. His passion is crime and violence prevention, for which he has won many awards. He was appointed in 2008 as an Officer in the General Division of the Order of Australia (AO) for his work in disadvantaged communities.

Gail Mason is Professor of Criminology at the University of Sydney. Gail's research centres on crime, social justice and exclusion. She is currently involved in projects on the international comparison of hate crime law, the policing of prejudice-motivated crime, cyber racism and the changing nature of sexual assault law. She was Director of the Sydney Institute of Criminology from 2008-2012.

Simone Rowe is a Research Associate at the University of New South Wales. Her research interests include decolonising approaches to research, the expansion of Indigenous and critical theory, Indigenous women and criminal justice, alternative responses to the criminalisation of people with mental and intellectual disabilities, and the development of critical criminal justice social work, both in theory and in practice.

Phillip Wadds is a Lecturer in Criminology at the University of New South Wales. His research interests include the night-time economy, crime prevention, policing, plural policing and security, alcohol and drug related violence, urban governance and the media and crime. Phillip is currently continuing his research on Sydney's night-time economy and local perceptions of safety and security related to its nightlife spaces.

Rebecca Wickes is a Senior Lecturer in Criminology at the University of Queensland. Her research focuses on demographic changes in urban communities and their influence on social problems. She has published in Criminology, Journal of Research in Crime and Delinquency and Journal of Quantitative Criminology. She is the lead investigator of the Australian Community Capacity Study.

ABOUT THE CONTRIBUTORS

Rob White is Professor of Criminology at the University of Tasmania. He has published widely in criminology and youth studies, with particular interests in green criminology and juvenile justice. Among his recent books are Innovative Justice (with Hannah Graham, Taylor and Francis, 2014); Environmental Harm: An Eco-Justice Perspective (Policy Press, 2013) and Environmental Crime and Collaborative State Intervention (with Grant Pink (eds), Palgrave Macmillan, 2016).

Renee Zahnow is a Research Fellow at the University of Queensland. She has expertise in spatial and longitudinal analysis and conducts research on the physical and social aspects of urban spaces that influence offending, victimisation and the regulation of public behaviour. She has published in Criminology, Journal of Urban Affairs and Journal of Transport Geography among others.