

A touch of silver – celebrating the Section’s 25th anniversary

On 2 December 2004, the Young Lawyers’ Section celebrated its 25th anniversary with great style and panache levels at a silver-themed party at The Glasshouse at Federation Square.

Former presidents Fiona McLeod SC and (current LIV president) Victoria Strong were invited to reflect on their year at the helm of the Section.

Both shared the view that it had been very rewarding, professionally and personally, to contribute to the activities of the Section.

A team of young lawyers who researched and noted the growth of the Section from its first meeting in March 1979 to a membership of 3900 in 2004, produced a commemorative booklet which was presented to the 300 special guests and Section members who attended the party. ■
