Schedule to this Act.

5. Section

Vermin Act Further Amendment Act.—1928.

A wire netting, seventeen gauge, of a minimum width of fifty-four inches and maximum mesh of three inches by four inches, to be erected on the outside of the fence, forty-eight inches to be above the surface of the ground, and a six inch ground lap. The lap to be held in place and secured by means of a twelve inch by one inch by a quarter inch flat iron pin every two feet, with a hole punched one inch from top thereof, driven into the ground for a depth of eleven inches at outer edge of six inch ground lap, with one fourteen gauge by three inch barbed wire well strained, and the barbed wire and wire netting secured to the pin by not less than twelve and a half gauge galvanized-iron wire.

A barbed wire, with barbs not more than three inches apart, fifty-four inches above the surface. The barbed wire to be fastened to the post with a number ten gauge galvanized wire staple put through a hole in the post and turned up on the other side, and connected with number ten gauge galvanized wire S hooks every five feet to the plain wire at four feet and the top of the netting.

Three number ten, or twelve and a half gauge high tensile, galvanized plain wires—two inches, two feet one inch, and four feet above the surface.

All tie wires except where otherwise specified to be of sixteen or eighteen gauge galvanized-iron wire, and well and securely made at equal intervals to each fifteen feet panel, securing the netting to the respective wires as follows :--

- Six to plain wire two inches above surface.
- Six to plain wire two feet one inch above surface.
- Ten to plain wire four feet above surface.

All strainers at corners, gateways, angles, and terminations to be provided with struts ten feet long by not less than three inches in diameter, of approved timber, the smaller end to be wedge-shaped and let one inch into the side of the strainer eighteen inches from the top, and the butt end to be embedded eight inches in the ground, and placed against a block of approved timber eighteen inches long by four inches diameter sunk twelve inches in the ground.

In the name and on behalf of His Majesty, I hereby assent to this Bill.

A. HORE-RUTHVEN, Governor.
