Commentary

Recommendation

The Foreign Affairs, Defence and Trade Committee has examined the Defence Amendment Bill and recommends by majority that it be passed with the amendments shown.

Introduction

The Defence Amendment Bill seeks to amend several aspects of the Defence Act 1990. The bill would generally embed and enable organisational reform in the New Zealand Defence Force (NZDF) and the Ministry of Defence. These reform goals were set out in the Defence White Paper, and the bill aims to establish them in legislation. This reform is expected to improve the efficiency of both organisations, and help them work together effectively.

The bill would have specific effects in a number of areas: capability management; information sharing; the appointment, removal and performance of the Chief of Defence Force (CDF); senior NZDF appointments and accountabilities; Civil Staff; civilianisation; reserves and territorial forces; and the defence advisory board. It also seeks to clarify a number of the Act's minor provisions.

This commentary covers the amendments we recommend to the House, and the key issues we discussed. We also recommend some minor technical amendments to clarify the intent of the bill and to correct drafting omissions, which are not discussed in this commentary.

Appointment and reappointments

We recommend amendments to separate the processes of appointment and reappointment set out in clauses 17 and 18 so that the State Services Commissioner and the Government do not have to undertake a full appointment process when making a reappointment of the Chief or Vice Chief of the Defence Force. This would also be consistent with section 35 of the State Sector Act 1988, which empowers the Commissioner to make a recommendation for reappointment of a Public Service chief executive without first notifying the impending vacancy, examining other applicants, or establishing a selection panel.

Information sharing

Concern was raised that clause 22 of the bill does not set out which categories of personal information could be shared or the uses to which information could be put. We recommend an amendment to specifically address the treatment of personal information and compliance with privacy legislation.

Transfer of functions from Armed Forces to Civil Staff

We recommend an amendment to clause 37 to make it clear that a former Service person who has been transferred to the Civil Staff would not be subject to the 90-day trial provisions of the Employment Relations Act 2002.

We also recommend amending the clause to cover a person who has been discharged from the Armed Forces because of a transfer of functions to the Civil Staff, whether or not they held a position of which the particular functions were transferred. This is because a person affected by the transfer of functions would not necessarily have been the incumbent in the transferred function, but would still have the required skills for the position.

Chiefs of Service Committee

Section 29 of the Defence Act establishes a Chiefs of Service Committee. We recommend that clause 20 of the bill be amended to repeal section 29 to disestablish the committee. This committee does not meet regularly at present and its activities are largely redundant, as the role, duties, and powers that it undertook in the past are now largely exercised by other non-statutory committees convened by the CDF or his designate. Therefore repealing section 29 would make the Act consistent with the amendment to section 8(3), which vests command of the Armed Forces singularly in the CDF.

The authority of the Chief of Defence Force

Clause 6 seeks to substitute a new subsection (3) in section 8 of the Act, which states that “the Chief of Defence Force shall command the Armed Forces”. It would replace the previous requirement that the CDF command “through the Single Service Chiefs”.

Concern was raised at the proposed removal of the requirement for the CDF to command the services through the chiefs of service, and we debated it at length.

It was suggested that this amendment could have the effect of concentrating too much power in one individual, especially combined with the proposed amendment in clause 19 of the bill (substituting a new section 28 of the Act), which would take away the single service chiefs’ right of referral to the Minister of Defence in the event that any one of them disagreed with the CDF; it was argued that this might result in an a potential absence of contesting advice to the Minister.

It was also argued that the current command structure constitutes a worthwhile safeguard (although it is not likely to be needed in practice) and is consistent with the hierarchical character of the armed forces. Some of us consider that the combined effect of these changes might be to erode the status of Chiefs of Service and to remove constitutional checks and balances on the CDF.

The intent of the proposed new clause is to ensure unity of command, and to underpin the CDF’s ability to develop and maintain a “one-force—three services” NZDF. It reflects the fact that in military operations single services no longer have primacy. The CDF is expected to have considerable experience in the joint operations typical of modern military deployments. The present situation, where the CDF commands the NZDF through the chiefs of service, entails of its nature a plurality of authority. This implies a potential for lack of clarity as to where the command and hierarchical accountability lie, and for uncertainty as to the status of conflicting directions. In this regard we do not recommend any amendment to this provision.

The Parliament of New Zealand enacts as follows:

- 1 Title
This Act is the Defence Amendment Act 2011.
- 2 Commencement
This Act comes into force on 1 July 2012. 5
- 3 Principal Act amended
This Act amends the Defence Act 1990.

Part 1

Amendments to Defence Act 1990

- 4 Long Title amended 10
The Long Title is amended by repealing paragraph (e) and substituting the following paragraph:

“(e) to define the relationship of the Chief of Defence Force to the Vice Chief of Defence Force and to the Chiefs of Service; and”.

5 Interpretation

(1) Section 2(1) is amended by inserting the following definitions in their appropriate alphabetical order: 5

“active reserve means the Royal New Zealand Naval Reserve, the New Zealand Army Reserve, and the Royal New Zealand Air Force Reserve

“inactive reserve means the Inactive Naval Reserve, the Inactive Army Reserve, and the Inactive Air Force Reserve 10

“leading aircraftwoman includes an aircraftwoman, a general service hand, or an air force cadet”.

(2) Section 2(1) is amended by repealing the definition of airman and substituting the following definition: 15

“airman or airwoman—

“(a) means any man or woman (as the case may be) duly attested for service in the Air Force, or declared by or under this or any other enactment to belong to the Air Force; and 20

“(b) includes—

“(i) a non-commissioned officer of the Air Force; and

“(ii) a rating of the Navy and a soldier of the Army attached to the Air Force; but

“(c) does not include an officer”. 25

(3) Section 2(1) is amended by repealing the definition of component and substituting the following definition:

“component, in relation to the Navy, the Army, or the Air Force, means the regular force or a reserve force of that Service”. 30

(4) Paragraph (a) of the definition of member of the Defence Force in section 2(1) is amended by omitting “or an airman” and substituting “an airman, or an airwoman”.

(5) Paragraph (c) of the definition of non-commissioned officer in section 2(1) is amended by omitting “an airman above the rank of leading aircraftman” and substituting “an airman or 35 airwoman above the rank of leading aircraftman or leading aircraftwoman”.

- (6) The definition of rank in section 2(1) is amended by omitting “acting, or honorary” and substituting “or acting”. 5
- (7) Paragraph (b) of the definition of rating in section 2(1) is amended by inserting “or airwoman” after “airman”. 5
- (8) Section 2(1) is amended by repealing the definition of reserve forces and substituting the following definition:
 “reserve forces means the active reserve and the inactive reserve collectively”. 10
- (9) Paragraph (b) of the definition of soldier in section 2(1) is amended by inserting “or airwoman” after “airman”. 10
- (10) Section 2(1) is amended by repealing the definition of territorial forces. 10
- (11) Section 2 is amended by repealing subsection (3) and substituting the following subsection: 15
- “(3) For the purposes of this Act, unless the context otherwise requires, a member of the Armed Forces is released from the component of the Service in which he or she is serving when the member, or the component, or the part of the component in which the member is serving, is transferred to another component of that Service.” 20

6 Chief of Defence Force

Section 8 is amended by repealing subsection (3) and substituting the following subsections: 25

- “(3) The Chief of Defence Force shall command the Armed Forces. 25
- “(4) The Chief of Defence Force may be appointed for a term of no more than 5 years but is eligible for reappointment from time to time by the Governor-General in Council on the recommendation of the Minister and the State Services Commissioner. ~~may be reappointed for further terms in accordance with section 25AB.~~ 30
- “(5) The Governor-General in Council may at any time remove the Chief of Defence Force from office for just cause or excuse. 30

“(6) To avoid doubt, section 2(2) of this Act and section 2(3) of the Armed Forces Discipline Act 1971 apply in respect of references to the Chief of Defence Force.”

7 Constitution of Defence Force

(1) Section 11(3) is amended by repealing paragraphs (c) and (d) 5
and substituting the following paragraph:
