

The 1996 Editorial Committee

The 1996 Editorial Committee is working hard to give the Young Lawyer's Journal a "new look", and a comprehensive coverage of issues of interest to young lawyers. The Committee is interested in hearing about the experiences of young lawyers working in all areas of the profession, from solicitors and judge's associates to corporate lawyers and articulated clerks. If you have gained unique experiences from work or study overseas, or have something to say about anything affecting young lawyers, we want to hear from you! Feedback on the journal is also especially welcome.

Letters and articles can be sent to the Editorial Committee c/o the Law Institute, or you can approach any of & Development Group, and does a variety of work for local councils including Magistrate's Court prosecutions, local laws and contracts, Freedom of Information and general litigation. An interest in writing stemming from his Arts Degree and experience in legal publishing led to Glen joining the Editorial Committee in 1994. Glen can be contacted on 9288 0630.

Anna Domine is vice-chair of the Executive Committee and former chair of Editorial Committee. Anna is another Monash grad, and works at Rigby Cooke's Malvern office as a Litigation/Commercial lawyer after previously working for a sole practitioner in Richmond for 2 years.

Although Anna started her university degree hoping to become a journalist, she worked her way through university with a job as an usher!

Liz Bishop, another former chair of Editorial, now works for the Attorney General after over a year as associate to Senior Member Joan Dwyer in the Commonwealth Administrative Appeals Tribunal, and previous work as a solicitor. Liz is the Ex Officio of the Executive Committee of the Young Lawyers Section in 1996, and has been representing the Young Lawyers Section in negotiations between interested parties in the Employee Relations Commission Hearing relating to the award wages of articulated clerks and junior solicitors.

Mary Studdert graduated from Monash with Economics and Law degrees in 1992. She works at McGrath Colman Stewart in Litigation. Mary missed our committee photograph as she was studying Mandarin at Nanjing University in China in January and February this year.

Tiffany McArthur completed her law degree at Darwin University in 1993, and in 1994 was an associate to Mr Justice Gray in the Supreme Court of the Northern Territory. Tiffany also has a Bachelor of Education from Flinders University in South Australia. In 1995, Tiffany began articles with Harwood Andrews in Geelong, and joined the Editorial Committee.

Mary O'Hanlon Creed works at Purves Clarke Richards in Construction Litigation, after graduating from Monash University in 1994. Mary brings a wealth of experience from her LSS days at Monash, and joined the Editorial Committee in 1995. Mary was involved in obtaining the funding for the Gordon Lewis Speaker's Trophy in 1995 and her other interests include advocacy; Mary founded the Advocacy Club at Monash.

Trevor Choy is practising in commercial law at Jerrard & Stuk, specialising in the visual arts and advertising industries. Prior to becoming a lawyer, Trevor worked as the advertising manager for the Melbourne University Student Union for two years. He then spent the next three years setting up and running an advertising and marketing consultancy which advised retailers and businesses in the entertainment industry. Trevor's other passion is graphic design. Trevor has been the driving force behind the Young Lawyers Journal's "new look".

Originally hailing from Sydney, Sharne Bryan completed a BA at the University of NSW in 1993, and LLB at Monash University in 1994. Sharne completed her articles at the Victorian Government Solicitors Office in 1996. Sharne is practising in the Administrative Law Branch, when not tap dancing.

Rosanna Stefanetti is the Young Lawyers Section Co-ordinator and sits on all the Young Lawyers Section Committees. Rosanna graduated from Melbourne University with Arts and Law degrees in 1994 and completed her articles at Acquaro & Co. Currently Rosanna is the Law Institute's research solicitor for the Litigation and Family Law areas, and advisor of articulated clerks. She has been the Treasurer of the Young Lawyers section in 1995/1996 and is currently a member of the Executive Committee. Rosanna's aims in her roles at the Law Institute are to improve the legal education and professional training of young lawyers, and represent the interests and attitudes of young lawyers.

the Committee members directly. If you see us around the traps, feel free to tell us your ideas or suggestions! The 1996 Committee members are:

Glen Pauline and Vicki Bolton - Joint Chair

Vicki and Glen both graduated from Monash University, Vicki in 1992 and Glen in 1993.

Vicki works at Nicholas O'Donohue & Co, as a litigation lawyer practising in most jurisdictions (from crash & bash to Supreme Court Commercial List matters). Vicki is also on the Law Institute Journal Editorial Committee and the Litigation Lawyers Education Committee. Known amongst her friends as "VB", her initials coincidentally depict her favourite after work beverage! Vicki can be contacted on 9602 5777.

Glen works at Maddock Lonie & Chisholm in the Government Planning
